1200 New York Avenue NW Room 637
Washington, DC 20005

January 22, 2004

Dear Colleague,

We wrote to you a little over a month ago to tell you about Capital Science 2004, the pan-affiliate conference sponsored by the Washington Academy of Sciences and its Affiliated Societies. In case you missed our last email (we have been having database problems), everything you might want to know about the conference can be found at <http://www.washacadsci.org/Website/Index.htm>.

We are writing to you at this time because the NSF media department has advised us that they will place stories in the Washington Post and Washington Times within a month. We expect that this will attract a large number of people and, because space in the NSF Conference Facility is limited, we may have to cut off registration. We do not want to do that unless all of the Academy members have had the opportunity to register. Therefore, if you plan to attend conference (to be held on March 21 and March 22), please go to the Conference website and click on the "Registration Information" icon. You will have a choice of registering either on- or off-line.

Just in case everything you might want to know something about the conference that is not on the website, please feel free to contact one of us and we will try to answer your questions.

We're looking forward to seeing you at the Capital Science 2004.

Cordially,

Doug Witherspoon, Vice President, Affiliated Societies
